

Turkish Billionaire Developing Florida's Tallest Skyscraper Says More Are Coming

Developer Bekir Okan made his billions in Turkey, but he is spending some of that fortune in Miami, where he is developing the $300M Okan Tower, which was inspired by the shape of a tulip. At 890 feet tall, it will eclipse Florida's current tallest tower, the 868-foot Panorama Tower, which opened this month.

Bisnow caught up with Okan via email to discuss his project and future plans in Miami. Bisnow: Tell me about yourself. How did you go from being a math teacher to a developer? Bekir Okan: I have been a businessman...
